BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

John Wesley Bond, born December 11, 1784, was a Methodist Episcopal minister and missionary. Early in his career he was appointed to the Calvert, Fairfax, and Great Falls circuits.

In 1814 he began to travel the United States with Bishop Francis Asbury and kept a journal of his trip. John Wesley Bond died on January 22, 1819 of fever. His relationship to Thomas Emerson Bond is unknown.

Thomas Emerson Bond, Sr. was born in Baltimore, Maryland in February 1782. He attended the University of Pennsylvania, studying medicine, and later earned his M.D. at the University of Maryland. He subsequently declined a teaching position at that institution and began a private medical practice. He obtained his preacher's license shortly thereafter. He is best known for his work as a Methodist Episcopal minister and writer and was actively involved in the establishment of that church.

He had a flair for writing and published many religious works including An Appeal to the Methodists, in 1827, and Narrative and Defense of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in 1828. In support of the church, he edited The Itinerant, a Baltimore newspaper. From 1840 to 1848, and again from 1852 until his death in 1856, he held the position of editor of the Christian Advocate and Journal in New York City. In addition, he was occasionally published in the Methodist Quarterly.

From 1833 to 1835, Thomas E. Bond was a member of the Board of Trustees for Dickinson College in Carlisle, Pennsylvania. Much of the material of the collection reflects his relationship with other trustees and members of the Dickinson community. Thomas Emerson Bond, Sr. died on March 14, 1856 in New York City.

Thomas Emerson Bond, Jr., was born in Baltimore in 1813 and assisted his father in the publication of the Christian Advocate and Journal for a number of years. He published his dissertation in 1843 entitled the Varieties of Mankind. He died in Maryland on August 18,

A very small component of the collection includes the correspondence of William Watters, born in 1751. Watters was a Native American who converted to Methodism as a teenager. In 1773 he became a missionary and the first Native American minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He died in Falls Church, Virginia in 1833.

COLLECTION DESCRIPTION

The Bond Family Collection contains the personal and business correspondence and associated materials of Reverend Thomas Emerson Bond, Sr., (1782-1856) a Methodist Episcopal minister. These materials are housed in two document boxes and are arranged into the following four categories: Correspondence, Journals, Manuscripts, and Miscellaneous Materials.

The Correspondence section primarily contains letters to and from Thomas Bond, Sr. One major topic of interest includes the bitter controversy over slavery that fueled the secession of the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845 from the Methodist Episcopal Church, a division that resulted in the loss of over two-fifths of the original Church's membership. Other topics include less controversial matters involving political and theological issues of the Church.

The remainder of the correspondence includes that of Thomas Bond, Jr., William Watters, various editors of the Christian Advocate Magazine, and miscellaneous letters to and from parties associated with the Methodist Church and Dickinson College. The number in parentheses following each folder of correspondence represents the number of letters in that folder. The folders are arranged alphabetically by correspondent, with letters sent preceding those received. The letters of each correspondent are then arranged chronologically. The miscellaneous grouping of letters is found to the back of this section.

The category entitled Journals contains four journals of John Wesley Bond from 1814 to 1818. These include his journal concerning a trip through the United States with Bishop Francis Asbury, a journal describing his expenses on that trip, a list of members of the Frederick circuit, and his record of sermons and marriages performed.

The Manuscripts section contains miscellaneous writings, presumably by both Thomas E. Bond, Sr. & Jr. (the two had nearly identical handwriting and signatures). This section also includes a short biographical piece by William Glendening.

The category entitled Miscellaneous Materials contains primarily reports and statements pertaining to the Methodist Church, both the Baltimore and New Jersey conferences, as well as missionary trips. In addition, this category contains the printed medical school dissertation of Thomas E. Bond, Jr. entitled the Varieties of Mankind, an early religious perspective on the origin of races. A folder of materials regarding Rev. George Peck is also included in this category. The folders in this section are arranged alphabetically by folder title.
